

101585 Oral Rehabilitation

[2 cr., 1, 3 cl.] Full mouth rehabilitation is by far the most life changing process we are capable of performing. It involves restoring the teeth, the occlusion (bite), the muscles, the self-confidence, and the self-esteem back to a natural looking and youthful feeling condition. Full mouth rehabilitation can eliminate the variables that decrease the daily quality of life. Improve the level of satisfaction you have with your smiles; eliminate the discomfort from chewing or sensitive foods improve the level of comfort experienced with sore jaw muscles and headaches, all by restoring your teeth to optimum level health and function.

Clinic: The goal of this course is to guide the development of necessary skills for the dental students to provide comprehensive care for their patients. This is accomplished by the presentation of information and training to develop ethical consciousness and communicative skills, skills in patient data collection, dental-medical record keeping, diagnosis of dental problems and diseases, formulation of comprehensive treatment plans, introduction to specific skills associated with various clinical disciplines, four-handed dentistry techniques, administration of local anesthetics, and gaining clinical experience through delivery of minor treatment to patients.
