

501323 Project Management

[3 cr., 3, 0] Project managers emerge not as bureaucrats or technicians clinging to rules and formulas, but as champions who challenge the status quo, set goals that extend the limits of their teams' capabilities, rely more on judgment and intuition than calculation, and are not afraid to take risks when necessary.

