

504206 Applied Statistics

[3 cr., 3, 0] The module discusses probability theory and its applications, in addition to random variables and probability functions, cumulative probability functions, expected values and variance, statistical distribution, sample distribution, confidence intervals for population parameters, and applying tests assumptions that all statistical models make, and motivates discussions using real-life examples.

