506344 Information Systems Design

[3 cr., 3, 0] This course introduces methodologies, techniques and tools used to design computer-based solutions to individual and organizational problems. It covers developing the new system specification, hardware and software selection, designing user interface, program modular design using structure charts, data flow, module description, input/output design, construction, testing, operation, evaluation and maintenance of new information systems